Development launch-readiness checklist

Questions to answer before you bring a residential project to market.

HARRISON DEVELOPMENT · DEVELOPMENT MARKETING & SALES

For developers, builders and landowners. Tick what is true today. The gaps are your next steps, and a good list to bring to a first conversation.

1 Project facts

- [ ] Ownership and your authority to sell or market are documented.
- [ ] Entitlement and approval status is written down, with dates and source documents.
- [ ] Unit mix, sizes and phasing are defined.
- [ ] Construction timeline and delivery dates are agreed with the builder.
- [ ] Pricing or rental terms are decided, or the plan to decide them is set.

2 Market and buyer

- [ ] Comparable sales and competing projects have been reviewed.
- [ ] Intended buyers or renters are described by what they need, in plain language.
- [ ] Your price positioning has a written rationale.
- [ ] Demand drivers, supply and seasonality are noted.

3 Brand and materials

- [ ] The project name has been searched for conflicts.
- [ ] Site plan, floor plans and finishes are approved for marketing.
- [ ] Renderings, and any AI-generated images, are labeled and match approved plans.
- [ ] A website or landing page with an inquiry form is ready.
- [ ] Rights to photos, video and music are confirmed.

4 Sales readiness

- [ ] A sales team or brokerage is chosen, with a written agreement.
- [ ] Marketing fees and brokerage compensation are documented separately.
- [ ] Required disclosures and fair-housing language are reviewed by your attorney and broker.
- [ ] Reservation, contract, deposit and escrow steps are decided.
- [ ] Showing plan, model or site-tour safety is set.

5 Inquiry and follow-up

- [ ] Every inquiry lands in one place, with a response-time goal.
- [ ] Qualification questions are agreed.
- [ ] Buyer feedback reaches the development team on a regular schedule.
- [ ] You know what personal information you collect, why, and where it is stored.

6 Compliance reminders

- [ ] You advertise only what is authorized, accurate and approved.
- [ ] Marketing avoids language that excludes people.
- [ ] Claims about returns, appreciation or sell-out pace are avoided unless substantiated and approved.
- [ ] Marketing copy is reviewed by someone other than its author.

Your notes and next steps

General information only. This is not legal, financial, tax or brokerage advice, and requirements differ by project and place. Confirm with your attorney and managing broker. No outcome, price, pace of sales or return is promised or implied.

Harrison Development · Development Marketing & Sales · Colorado · 970-904-0600 · charlesharrison@epique.me

Led by Charles Harrison. Real estate brokerage services provided through Epique Realty. The Harrison Development name and logo are pending brand clearance.